MERCHANT STUDENT PARTY IS SUCCESS

Backboard Club Drive Underway

The membership drive for the Murray Backboard Club is now underway, according to Joe Pat James, membership chairman.

James said all members of the club last year would be solicited for 1961 dues within the next few days. He explained that the cost of membership is $10.00, and that the membership fee entitles members to four dinner meetings per year.

Funds derived from the membership drive, over and above expenses of meals, etc., are split evenly between the football and basketball funds at Murray State. Galen Thurman, 1961-62 Backboard Club president, said, "We are looking for our largest membership this year. Last year we had more than 200 members, and we look for close to 300 this year."

Since its inception three years ago the Backboard club has taken over the sale of basketball program advertising for Murray State. It has, through various projects, contributed several thousand dollars to the College Scholarship Fund.

Other projects have included bringing outstanding sports attractions to this city, and honoring past Murray State athletes and teams.

The club brought Baltimore Colts Quarterback Johnny Unitas here last year, and this year is sponsoring the appearance here of the St. Louis Hawks — Cincinnati Royals professional basketball team.

Last year the club honored former Murray State Basketball star Benny Purcell, and former coach Harlan Hodges, by chartering a bus and taking approximately thirty members to Anna-Jonesboro, Illinois, where Purcell is now basketball coach, and Hodges is high school principal. Both were presented with token gifts.

During the half-time of one of the Murray State games last year, the first Murray State basketball team was honored under the auspices of the club.

Thurman said several similar events are planned by the organization this year.

James said, "anyone who enjoys college sports is welcome to join the Backboard Club. If you are not contacted, any member of the group will be happy to assist you in obtaining a membership."

The first meeting of the Backboard Club for 1961-62 has been set for mid-October.

Eddie Grogan Second Alternate In Meet At Madisonville

Eddie Grogan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Grogan was the second alternate in the Regional Farm Talent Roundup sponsored by the Southern States Cooperative at Madisonville October 2. The contest was held to select a representative from this region to participate in the contest at the National Southern States Cooperative meeting to be held in Richmond, Virginia on October 26.

The winner at Richmond will receive a cash award and the privilege of appearing on Ted Mack's Amateur Hour.

A Ted Mack scout judged the contest. As one of the top three contestants, Eddie's picture was taken and a tape recording made of his piano solo for Ted Mack's file for a possible future TV appearance.

Eddie was sent to the regional contest by the Calloway County Soil Improvement Association. He won the local talent contest at the Farm Bureau picnic as a representative of the Calloway County 4-H Teen Club. He has been a 4-H member for seven years and won a Yard Improvement state championship, and was runner up in Entomology in 1960 for which he attended the National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

He has recently won district championships in Junior Leadership and Home Room Improvement.

Eddie is a junior at Murray High and drum major for the band.

Many Changes Made In The Local Library

By MRS. GEORGE HART

If you haven't been to the public library in the last few weeks, you'll be surprised at the change made in the appearance, many new shelves added, hundreds of new books, loads of framed pictures, hi-fi records—for lending, all these are the result of the Regional Library program being established in Murray.

These interesting things are to be on exhibit October 14 and 15th when Open House is being held and the public is invited. Not only are Calloway folks invited but the other four counties participating in the Regional Library Program are being invited, too. They are Graves, Fulton, Hickman, and Marshall.

The $7500.00 bookmobile is here and ready to start serving schools and other stops in the county. Roy May, senior Library Extension representative, Frankfort, arrived with the bookmobile Monday. It has been loaded with 2,000 books and will start its visit to the schools in the next few days.

Practically the entire county has worked to get this Regional Library program set up here and the Open House October 14-15 will be the official presentation of the Regional program.

This Regional program is being brought here on a trial basis. It will be a permanent thing if this county can vote the 8 cent tax on the $100.00 assessed property valuation in the November election.

Rosierucian Books Donated To Library

Readers in Murray and Calloway County will now have access to Rosierucian books in the public library. Charles H. Farris, of R.I. Murray, a member of the Rosierucian Order (AMORC), has just received official notification from the International Jurisdiction of the Order in San Jose, California, that the following books have been donated to the Murray-Calloway County Library by the Order.

MENTAL POISONING, By Spencer Lewis; ROSIERUCIAN QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS - WITH COMPLETE HISTORY OF THE ORDER, By H. Spencer Lewis; UNTO THREE I GRANT, Sri Ramamatho.

Mr. Farris said that the Rosierucian Grand Secretary informed him that the donation to the library is the result of several requests from local readers that the books be made available to the public. A yearly appropriation is made by the Rosierucian Order, said Mr. Farris, to provide the educational, philosophical, nonsectarian works of the organization to such public institutions as libraries and hospitals.

He said that the number of Rosierucian books at the local library will be increased as the public creates a demand for them.

Mrs. Juliet Hamlin Holton

Mrs. Holton Honored By Memorial

A music library and listening room at Murray State College has been named in honor of the late Mrs. Juliet Holton, a cultural leader in the Fine Arts Building.

Mrs. Holton, known as Miss Juliet in Murray, died January 11, 1960, at the age of 82. Since her death, several donations have been made to the Murray State Music Department in her memory by her family and her friends. These donations have been used to provide needed equipment and materials for the library and listening room in the Fine Arts Building.

Richard W. Farrell, chairman of the department of fine arts, said that the assistance that the donations will bring to students of music at MSC will most fittingly perpetuate the memory of Mrs. Holton.

Hundreds Attend Welcome Event Held On Court Square

500-1000-1500-2000-2500-Who knows. The fact remains that weary merchants handed out 8,000 hotdogs last night to a huge number of Murray State College students, plus nearly 3,000 cokes, unknown quantities of All-Jersey milk, Ryan Milk Company grape juice, popcorn by the bushel, and two big cartons of sample cigarettes handed out by Benny Page, local representative for Camel and Winston cigarettes.

The event held on the square last night was financed by the merchants all over the city and was a welcome to the students of Murray State College, nearly 3,700 of them.

The festivities started at 6:30 with the Murray High School band giving a thirty minute concert. The band got a nice hand from the crowd who realized their difficulty in playing in the 45 degree weather.

After several welcome talks by Mayor Ellis, Dr. Ralph Woods, Rev. Walter Mischke and Chamber of Commerce Secretary James Johnson, the string band of Joe Rafferty of Paducah took over and square dancing went on in the street until about 9:00 p. m.

John Ann's Combo took the stand at nine and continued to play until 10:30.

Cliff Emerson moved the piano from the college and back again, free of charge and Taylor Motor Company furnished the large trailer which was used as a band stand.

The trailer was parked in the middle of the street between Kuhn's and Boone Buildings. Artell Tucker furnished the public address system for the event.

The Coca-Cola Company of Paducah furnished the 3,000 Cokes free of charge and Ryan Milk furnished the milk and grape drink. Over 9,000 paper cups were used, during the welcome party and 8,000 hot dogs were cooked.

The hot dogs were cooked at the college and brought to the square in new, sterilized, galvanized covered cans. Colonial Bakery furnished the buns at a reduced price.

Local lumber companies furnished lumber, saw horses and concrete blocks to hold up the table which stretched from Lerman's to Kuhn's on the other end of the square.

A Western Kentucky Stages bus brought students down town from the college and carried them back again.

It was generally considered that the success of the event was due to a united front on the part of all merchants.

No adverse comments were heard during the occasion. Last night, only words of appreciation and thanks.

"I've never seen such a friendly town," said one student. "You'd never see this sort of thing in my hometown," said another. "We really appreciated this," was a comment heard often. "Had a nice time" was shouted many times as students left the square to return to their dormitories.

Merchants from all over the city not only financed the event, but they were also at the scene last night handing out Cokes, hot dogs, cold drinks, popcorn, etc.

Local popcorn dealers furnished the popcorn free of charge, with some of them popping corn before the event started and having it on hand in boxes. Three popcorn poppers were placed on the square going "full blast."

Murray merchants had nothing to sell last night but good will, and a friendly welcome, and Murray State students seemed to appreciate it.

The event last night is the first of what is expected to be an annual event to welcome all the students to Murray.

Orchestra To Be In Murray On Saturday

Conductor Robert Whitney and the world-famous Louisville Orchestra will be in Murray Oct. 7 for two concerts.

The first, for children will be at 4 p. m. The second will be at 8 p. m. Both will be in the Murray State College Auditorium.

Conductor Whitney and the 50-member orchestra have won international fame for their interpretations of contemporary music but their programs at home, in Louisville's Columbia Auditorium, and on tour lean heavily on the melodic output of classical and romantic composers. The "Moderas" are played to add a little salt to the programs.

Whitney is observing his 25th anniversary as conductor of The Louisville Orchestra this season. And this year is the second season of concerts in Kentucky cities performed by the orchestra under a two-year grant from the State, made specifically for the tours.

The versatility of the orchestra and its big repertoire of music is shown in the program Whitney has chosen for the Murray concert.

The program will consist of: Overture to Euryanthe by von Weber; Symphony No. 7 by Beethoven; Thesis by Henry Cowell; 2nd and 3rd movements from the Violin Concerto by Khatichaturian, with Paul Kling, violinist; and the Carnival Overture by Dvorak.

Veteran Whitey Ford And Jim O'Toole To Get Mound Duties Today As World Series Opens

By LEO H. PETERSEN

UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whitey Ford, the New York Yankees' 25-game winner, and Jim O'Toole, who won 19 for the Cincinnati Reds, waited on the weather and Mickey Mantle today in the first game of the World Series.

Rain Forecast

The forecast called for the rain, which limited both clubs to light running and limbering-up drills in their final workout Tuesday, to taper off towards afternoon. It would have to rain hard for Frick to order a postponement because a day's delay would upset travel, hotel and other plans.

Should today's game be postponed it would be played Thursday with the rest of the series and off days all set back one day. The second game would be played in Yankee Stadium on Friday in event of a postponement, with Saturday an off day for travel, with the series resuming Sunday.

Hope For Clear Weather

Although he realized a postponement would be a break for Mantle, Manager Ralph Houk of the Yankees hoped the weather would clear.

"Let's get this thing started," he said.

Manager Freddie Hutchinson of the Reds felt the same way.

"And I hope Mantle plays, too," Hutchinson said. "We hope we get the breaks, but we don't want that kind. We want to meet the Yankees and beat them at their best."

Mantle, weak and seven pounds underweight after a bout with virus and the flailing of an abscess on his right thigh, said it was "unlikely" he would play "unless I feel a lot better."

But he was encouraged after taking a brief jog in the drizzle and rain, which restricted the final workouts of both clubs, and said afterward, "If it's humanly possible, I'll try."

Teammates Optimistic

Mantle's teammates, however, and the Yankees' physician, Dr. Sidney Gaynor, were betting that Mantle would start.

With Mantle out, O'Toole's task would be less difficult. But it would make things tougher for Ford, for Mickey's booming bat and brilliant fielding were instrumental in many of his 25 triumphs.

Mantle with 54 home runs was second only to his record-busting teammate, Roger Maris, who had 61. And the Yankees would be weakened defensively with Maris taking over for Mantle in center and either Hector Lopez or Johnny Blanchard, a catcher, in right.

Maris was ready to go.

"For the first time in a long while, I really feel rested," the new home run king said. "I just hope Mickey plays, for that would take some pressure off me. With him out, maybe I would unconsciously be swinging for the fences, hoping to make up for the long ball he always gives us."

No Red Injuries

It didn't appear as if Hutchinson would have any injury problems for catcher Darrell Johnson, who has a strained left side, said he was sure he would be ready to play.

"That is, if Hutch wants me," he added.

Hutchinson wants him because of his experience. The other Reds catchers, Johnny Edwards and Jerry Zimmerman, are rookies.

With or without Mantle, the Yankees still were favored to win the opening game, 3-5 and in the series, 11-5. The odds-makers figure the Yankees, even without Mantle, have too much power and defensive strength for the Reds, who do not have a single player with World Series experience.

The Yankees, on the other hand, are old hands at series play. They have been in 11 of the last 14 World Series and won eight of them.

FARM BUREAU CONCERNED ABOUT CIVIL DEFENSE OATH

By LARRY MAY

The board of directors of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation views with grave concern press reports of complaints of some persons being required to take the civil defense oath.

President Burl St. Clair said in a letter to James R. Dorman Jr., deputy civil defense director, "We are equally disturbed that these reports indicate that this requirement has been ignored in the past."

"We agree with the position you have taken and congratulate you on having taken it. We believe you should not only enforce the law, but should support it wholeheartedly without reservation. We find the oath neither unreasonable, objectionable or distasteful. Anyone who objects has no business assuming the responsibilities associated with his appointment," the letter stated.

The oath requires state civil defense employees to swear to support and to defend the constitutions of the United States and of Kentucky, and that they are not members and will not become members of any political party or organization that advocates overthrowing the government of the United States by force or violence. The oath has been required since March 5, 1952.

Mr. St. Clair told Colonel Dorman, "We know it is not necessary to point out to you the seriousness of the present world situation and the grave problems that may be ahead. We cannot afford to have anyone connected with the defense of our country who is not more than willing to indicate his loyalty."

The Kentucky Farm Bureau suggested that "no pressure should be used to cause any person to take the oath. We believe that all persons who voice resentment to the oath, or reluctantly agree to take it, should be dropped from the program."

The group, which represents more than 70,000 Kentucky farm families, pointed out that good loyal citizens are available to fill these appointments and offered the services of Farm Bureau to help find them.

The junior 4-H club met Thursday in the Faxon cafeteria and conditions throughout the area to day and Thursday.

Temperatures will be a little too cool for really ideal curing weather, but if the tobacco barn is opened about 9 or 10 a. m. and then closed about sundown, this will keep the temperature and humidity at levels which, according to the U. of K. agronomists, will produce good quality cured tobacco.

Farmers who have been using heat in their tobacco barns may allow fires to die out this morning.

Our Soil Our Strength

By ROBERT BROWN

Soil Conservationist

The Kentucky Association of Soil Conservation Districts will hold its annual meeting at Kentucky Dam Village Oct. 4 and 5. Supervisors from 121 Soil Conservation Districts in Kentucky will take part in the annual event.

Supervisors from Calloway County planning to attend the sessions are: Lowell Palmer, B. H. Dixon, Marvin Hill, Purdon Lassiter, and Harvey Ellis. Wayne Williams, Murray, formerly with the Division of Soil and Water Resources will appear on the program at one of the sessions.

Gingie Barnes has completed one waterway and a pit pond recently. Barnes had shaped and seeded two waterways on this farm last year. A gulley had formed in one and it was repaired while the bulldozer was on the farm. Repairwork is often necessary on grassed waterways and it should be done before serious damage takes place. It is especially hazardous shaping and seeding waterways this late in the year. Farmers are reminded that October 10th is the last day waterway work can be done under the ACP cost-share program.

Other conservation work such as drainage, ponds, diversions, etc., can continue until stopped by bad weather.

The past few weeks have been especially favorable for doing drainage work. Fonza Orr, state line road, completed 900 feet of open ditch drainage and Urban Belcher, north of Kirskey's has completed 500 feet of drainage work. Drainage ditches have been planned on the farms of Wells Nix, old Murray-Paris road, T. H. Smotherman and O. H. Jones, near Taylor's store.

Survey work has been completed on the floodwater retarding structure east of Hazel. The survey crew is working at the present time on a proposed dam just west of Wiswell. The information collected will be used to determine the exact location and size of the proposed dams.

Charles R. Tutt, SCS student trainee who spent the summer working out of this office has returned to college to continue toward a degree in agriculture. Charles is a junior at Murray college this fall.

The 1961 Soil Conservation Essay contest has been announced. Over two hundred entries were received in this county last year and last years statewide winner came from Calloway County. The winner was W. H. Brooks.

The CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 72 "Belle Boyd played the role of spy as if the war were a light-hearted game of charades. And she lived as if she were fashioning her days into the plot of a romantic story. During her lifetime she could have read about herself in at least two historical novels, neither did justice to her exploits." That is how the distinguished Southern regional historian, Hartnett T. Kane begins an account of "the Cleopatra of the Secession" in his book, "Spies for the Blue and Gray."

Belle's family name sometimes was spelled with an "e": Boyde. She came from one of the poor branches of a family of landowners in the Shenandoah Valley; her father was a storekeeper. Belle was the subject of attention herself and was attentive to what was said around the store, which like most stores in those days was a community center. She felt she had good reason to know all that was being said and happening after the war began in 1861. "Though only 17 in 1861, Belle 'was above all overwhelmingly feminine; she made good use of her womanly appeal, of which she had an enormous amount," it was stated. "She looked at men through her long lashes, assuring them that she had no intentions hostile to the North, while she stole whatever secrets were at hand."

Belle supplied Col. T. J. "Stonewall" Jackson's forces with information that helped them gain their initial successes in the Shenandoah Valley, and she continued her valuable services to the Confederacy. Captured twice, she got away both times through feminine hoodwinkery. Finally she went to England, smuggling dispatches to Rebel agents in London. (More about Belle here later). —CLARE KINNAIRD

CHAPTER 14

It was good to be aboard the Mayflower again.

Sal Standish was summoned to the main cabin, from which the others were excluded. But the others were summoned there too, or most of them.

Later, Sal was the last to go, along with Edward Doty and Edward Leister. He thought the connection was significant, and was prepared for insult.

Brewster, Carver, Winthrop, they were all there, looking portentous; and not only the principal saints but some of the strangers as well, William Mullins for one, and Miles Standish, and even John Billington, who looked sulky, dissatisfied.

Elder Brewster smiled upon the newcomers, and delicately cleared his throat.

"It has been thought by some of us, my most of us, virtually all," he started, "that before we go ashore, wherever that may be, we should have a distinct understanding as to our government. I mean, now we should rule ourselves."

"Rule ourselves?" cried Sal, flabbergasted.

"How else? We are three thousand miles from Court and King, and three thousand miles from the remainder of the adventures. We must needs make our own court. Surely you see that?"

Sal was frowning.

"Go on," he said.

Elder Brewster picked up a paper. It was a simple thing, with no seals or stamps, or ribbons attached.

"We have framed this, uh, well, charter."

"Only the King can grant a charter," Sal pointed out.

"Why I suppose you'd call it a compact, then. Anyway, all some others. That does not mean, you understand, that you three young men will be expected to do the same. It's entirely up to you."

Doty and Leister, their masters' eyes upon them, and realizing that it was too late to object, nodded submissively.

"Why don't you read it?" Sal asked.

"I was about to do that."

THERE was some silence after Elder Brewster finished reading and put the paper down.

Everybody looked at Sal, excepting John Carver, who looked at his servants. After a moment Doty and Leister, all fire gone, stepped up and signed.

Then they left.

Elder Brewster sanded the signatures, and proffered the pen to Sal, who shook his head.

"It is not necessary that you write your name," the elder said in a kindly voice. "Somebody could write it for you, and you could make—"

"Oh, I can write my name all right. But I'm not going to write it on a paper like that. It sounds against the King."

"Boy, it is not meant to be. Well, it sounds that way. It sounds illegal."

"But if—"

"It ain't natural. How could

Old Idea About People Is Tottering

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — A long-held scientific idea about people may be tottering. This idea is that people who have hallucinations about smells are sicker than those who have them about sights and sounds.

The idea goes further. It holds that among people given to having hallucinations, the vast majority hear "voices" and see "visions" and very few center their hallucinations upon that other sense, the one of smell.

Drs. Shirley L. Rubert and Marc

Hollender of the State University of New York, Syracuse, see no reason why this should be true when they began thinking about the idea. After all, people, whether they're well or sick, smell as well as see and hear things.

Outlook Not Good
But they found no immediate justification for skepticism. They are on the staff of the Syracuse Psychiatric Hospital. Of the patients discussed at staff conferences no more than one in a hundred were said to have hallucinations of smell and usually, the general outlook for them was not good.

Psychiatrists are keenly interested in hallucinations naturally. They've analyzed, dissected, compared. Psychiatrists ask patients what "voices" they've heard, what "visions" they've seen. It dawned on Dr. Rubert and Dr. Hollender that perhaps psychiatrists don't ask patients about smells. Dr. Hollender put the question to the patients. "What smells do you smell?" he asked. "I smell nothing," they now say. The scientists said that is in no way a scientific possibility. Thirty-six patients who had been given to hallucinations of sight and sound for a year or longer were taken into account.

Nobody Asked Them
They were asked if they ever had hallucinations of smell. Thirty of the 36 had them, which certainly indicated they were not rare. "We haven't you mentioned this?" Each was asked and each replied: "Nobody asked me." That disposed of one half of the long-held scientific idea. As for the other half, the scientists said they believed the small halitosis group could not indicate the depth of the illness. Some of the patients they questioned recovered in less than three months.

They wondered why so few patients reported their hallucinations of smell and why psychiatrists didn't ask patients if they had them. The sense of smell obviously is biologically less important to man than to other animals, they said, in reporting to the technical journal Archives of Psychiatry.

Society Is Factor
And there are also the social taboos. They affect both psychiatrist and patient. Generally speaking people comment only on pleasant odors such as those arising from flowers and perfume. Disagreeable odors are not mentioned in polite society.

The small hallucinations found their imagined smells unpleasant in the main. Many of the hallucinations were of the smells of burning things. To one hallucinator the smell suggested someone was being burned in hell fire.

The psychiatrists thought hallucinations of smell were much less impressive to the people who have them than hallucinations centered on the other senses. One patient said: "I was more frightened of the noise and sights than I was of odors."

FUR LITTLE WHOOPERS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The almost extinct whooping cranes have something new to 'whoop' about: four little whoopers.

The baby girls were spotted Sept. 18 in the Sass River area of the Canadian Northwest Territories, the Interior Department said Wednesday. The whooper flock last year totaled 36.

EMERGENCY LANDING
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — An Air National Guard plane carrying South Carolina Gov. Ernest F. Hollings made an emergency landing here Wednesday when one of its two engines failed.

The C-47 was en route to Columbia, S. C., from Nashville where Hollings had attended the annual Southern Governors Conference.
